I did not know if "us" was just each county or if schools and other taxing districts were part of the decision makers. So if your school does not have a bond levy anymore and is limited to 1.50 then now they will be getting less the county current expense fund after all these years getting much more than the county? Or we changing the definition in the agreement to treat Part 2 as going to be billed as well and disbursed to the school district?

I would say there is no Parliamentary procedure. We are all on separate agreements and it ultimately is up to each County to decide the direction that they go.

As for the procedure I would say a proration would be a bad idea as it adds complication that at the end of the day is unnecessary. There will be a reduction from last year, but if we try to go the route of adding a complication we will be back at the table yet again discussing this same topic.

Now when you refer to "us" who are you talking about?

My expectations was that the Assessor's offices were going to give us the details of what those amounts would be and then for us to decide if that was going to be the direction we go. It was pondered that it would be a large reduction to what DOE was actually agreeable to paying. With school levies going down big time, this will be a big drop for them and this idea would cost them dearly. My latest proposal is to have the Assessor's do the Open Space/Current Use value and use that as a proration of an amount that is what they actually paid this last time around. Since I do not know what each county got this last time, I am not sure what they are hoping to be around that number or we could go one million less to entice them for an agreement.

Grant County received 41,169.37 in July 2018 but I think that was for 2017.
Then we got 1,259,160.45 the end of October 2018 and 63,000 in November.

How much did your counties get?

And as to Parliamentary procedure, if there is alternative plans, who gets to vote?

To my knowledge there has been no “deal” put in place. I will check with Adam Fyall who has been the go between.

--Adam has there been anything on that front?

Everyone:

I am preparing the PILT information and tax bill for the DOE PILT parcels in Franklin County. I want to confirm with the group that the land value used as the basis to calculate taxes for the 2019 year is the “Current Use” land value for these parcels. I believe that was the consensus of the per our meetings held during the summer and fall of 2018. Please let me know if I misunderstood.

Thanks,
